Solve Wall Street Explosion

FOURTH RED CROSS ROLL CALL STARTS MONDAY MORNING

Annual Red Cross Roll Call Coming

Preparations are practically completed for the Fourth Red Cross Roll Call which will open here on Monday and continue throughout the week. Mrs. John S. Duvall is chairman of the local committee and is arranging an active campaign for the Monessen-Belle Vernon Chapter and it is hoped that all will contribute. The fourth roll call is not a campaign. It is merely the yearly opportunity for American men and women to pay their annual dues and renew their membership in the Red Cross. The world is so full of uncertainty that no sooner is one duty ended than another looms up just as large.

The primary obligation of the Red Cross was to the service men of the army and navy. Of that obligation these things will remain:

First: To stay with the Army of Occupation, comprising thousands of officers and men and serve as their Red Cross.

Second: To continue in the hospitals of the army, the navy and the public health service where there are more than 26,000 men, many of whom will be retained there for months and some of them for years, and carry on their recreational and social work.

Third: To keep in touch as an advisory organization with the discharged men of the army and navy and be ready—not always in the way of financial aid, but what is worth more—to contribute friendly assistance.

Fourth: While the government itself is carrying on vocational training for maimed and crippled men, it has turned over to the Red Cross the care of those who have been blinded in the crash of war. No more sacred service can be imagined than this.

Prisoner Acquitted

A jury yesterday afternoon in Greensburg acquitted Frank Karma, aged 32 of Webster, on a charge of arson. The man was arrested early on the morning of September 28, when he was seen crawling from under the Webster garage after it had been set afire. He was caught a short distance from the garage and his clothing was soaked with water and he acted queerly. The same night of the Webster fire numerous fires supposedly of incendiary origin in Donora, caused property loss estimated at $40,000.

Karma, following his arrest pleaded to be sent to a home, stating that he was crazy and that the spirits had told him to start the fire in the garage. A true bill was found against the man when he was taken before the grand jury, but when the testimony in the case was given the jury of twelve men, he was acquitted.

Following his arrest, Donora physicians examined the prisoner and declared him to be insane, but a commission appointed in Greensburg declared the man was sane and he returned to his home in Webster last night. Donora officials, fearing a repetition of the incendiary fires, will keep a close watch on the man.

Investigate Fires

With the total destruction Monday night by fire believed of incendiary origin of the Fairhope dancing pavilion, entailing a loss of $10,000, police have been furnished with one of the most valuable clues thus far secured in unearthing the destruction not only of the pavilion, but of the Marion school building, destroyed by fire two weeks prior when a loss of more than $50,000 was entailed.

"We've got some very good information, direct from the inside, to work on, but as we wish to refrain from making any statements," one of the police officers told a member of the board yesterday. He repeated that it was the belief of the authorities that "both jobs," were negotiated by fire bugs of criminal instinct.

Following the Marion school fire, the owners of the pavilion placed their building at the disposal of the school authorities and school sessions were being held in the building.

Soldier Buried

Waynesburg, Pa., Nov. 10.—The funeral of Private John Duvall, who died in France of wounds received in action, will be held tomorrow and will be in charge of the American Legion Post. Full military honors will be paid Private Duvall, who was a student in the Waynesburg High school. When war was declared he enlisted in Company K, Tenth Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, which went overseas as part of the One-Hundred and Tenth Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division. He was a son of Mrs. Chas. McNurlin, who now resides at Altoona.

Award Decorations

By. A. L. BRADFORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 11—Secretary Daniels made the second anniversary of armistice day the occasion for the belated distribution today of 2,621 naval decorations to members of the navy and marine corps who served in the world war.

The naval awards have been sent to commanding officers of all ships, stations and posts and were being presented today with simple ceremonies.

Daniels announcement of the awards recalled the famous controversy of a year ago between Daniels and Admiral Sims, commander of the American forces in Europe during the war. This controversy, which started when Sims refused his award and charged that Daniels had shown favoritism in distribution of others, finally led to a congressional investigation of the navy's conduct of the war.

Saturday of this week the Knights of Pythias of this city will have the honor of presenting the first ceremonial of the Fall and Winter campaign of Kalaab Temple No. 212, Dramatic Order Knights of Korassam and it promises to be a big day for Pythianism combined with Dokeyism. A special train leaving McKeesport at three o'clock and arriving here at 3:40 will bring the officers, brigands, minstrels, votaries and Tyros, familiarly called Tiger Meat. They will proceed to Turner hall where promptly at five o'clock the Pythian Sisters will have a big banquet prepared to satisfy the inner wants of the most fastidious. Places will be set for five hundred guests.

At six o'clock a parade will form led by the [illegible] band, and the Dokeys with their Fez's will march up Donner avenue to Ninth street and Knox avenue to the High school building where a program has been arranged that will be the biggest ever attempted by the lodge.

All members of the lodge should be Dokeys and those who have not signed an application should see Wells, Robens, Smith, Williams, Boaz or any of the boys who wear a smile and Fez and be prepared to travel the torrid sands at home.

NEW YORK EVENING WORLD CLAIMS IT HAS SOLVED WALL STREET EXPLOSION

(By United Press)

New York, Nov. 11.—The New York Evening World this afternoon under the heading "Wall Street Explosion Solved" gave an interesting account of a personally conducted investigation made by the paper in which they claim they have fully solved the bomb horror of September 16 when 30 persons were killed and thousands of dollars worth of property damaged, caused in the heart of the financial district of the of the metropolis.

According to their story the bomb was meant for a house wrecking job near the Morgan office and was sent by individual members or sympathizers of House Wreckers Union No. 95 who had a grievance against the Brindley Trades Council Dock builders and Houseshorers No. 1456, members of which were at work on the job. The bomb, according to their investigation, was consigned to the contractor, Albert A. Volk & Co., and was being transported in a dilapidated wagon and broken down horse, driven by a Pole, who knew nothing of his cargo.

At the Wall street intersection he became confused by the traffic and left his wagon for instructions as to the address of the contractor and during this time, the bomb, which was set for 12:02 exploded. The World states that it is now up to the police and private detective agents to secure the arrest of the guilty parties.

Industrial War

(By United Press)

Berlin, No. 11—Government threats that electrical industries will be operated under government control if striking workers do not return was accepted today as a declaration of industrial war. It was not believed the government's attitude might aggravate the labor situation in which efforts are being made to call a general strike.

The electrical workers, who threw thousands out of employment when they shut off electric power, lighting and transportation, appeared to be weakening in their decision to continue but other unions hastened to drive them back. A threat was made to withhold strike benefits unless the electrical workers voted renewal of the strike. They were to act today.

Discussions will continue over Italian sovereignty in Fiume and disposition of several Dalmatian Islands.

Harding Speaks

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 11.—President-elect Warren G. Harding abandoned his fishing today and came here to make an Armistice Day speech, his first set speech since his election.

It was with some difficulty and no little personal effort that the sunburned President-elect got into his starched shirt and high collar. He has grown fond of the soft shirt, broad hayseed hat, the loose brown denim trousers, and the soft canvas shoes he has worn since his arrival here.

Brownsville was gaily decked out for the big day which is to commemorate not only Armistice Day but the completion of preliminary arrangements looking to opening of the entire lower Rio Grande valley.

Nearly every town for a hundred miles around had a delegation here. Gov. Hobby of Texas was expected.

Harding had a picturesque setting for his appearance here, almost a foreign one. Little old Mexican lace makers sat cross-legged in front of their tiny shops with their wares piled high around them, bargaining with visitors for a sale. Ranchers came in with their high boots white with the dust of the plains. Sombreros and bright colored shirts added variety to the scenes in the narrow streets.

In these times of high wages, $50 and $100 bills are as plentiful here as five's and ten's used to be.

Little Girl's Story Cause of Man's Arrest

A warrant was sworn out this morning for the arrest of George Guist, janitor at the Iowa school building, charging him with an attempt to rape. According to the story of the alleged victim of the rape, an eight year old girl, she and another little girl had gone to the basement of the building to get a drink of water. One girl had secured her drink and left the basement and the other was left alone. She claims she was approached by the janitor, who enticed her back of the boiler and placed her upon his lap. The child became frightened and began to scream. Her companion hearing her screams, notified a teacher who was passing and they went to the basement, where the teacher learned the story.

The little girl went to her home, but was too frightened to tell her parents of the incident. However, the police were notified and in company with a physician, they went to the home of the girl to conduct an investigation. The parents of the child then learned of the attack upon their daughter.

A warrant was immediately secured charging the janitor with a serious crime and this morning he was placed under arrest by Constable Plackinger. The prisoner is well known here being a married man with a family. He stoutly denied the charge against him.

Boys are Missing

Edward and Kenneth Beach, aged 14 and 9 years, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Beach of Washington, Pa., left home Saturday afternoon, and their whereabouts since are not known. It is known that the older boy had been planning to run off and had tried to persuade some other boys to accompany him, and failing in this, had induced his younger brother to go with him. The parents have no idea in what direction they have gone. If they had any money, it was only a small amount. The older boy, it is said, had shown a tendency to be headstrong and roam as he pleased, and the father found it difficult to control him. The parents will consider it a favor if anyone having any knowledge of the movements of the boys will notify them or the police department.

To Open New Store

Tomorrow a new and up-to-date piano store will be opened at No. 50 Sixth street by C. H. Wilt, with a full line of Lester Pianos, Player Pianos and Grands. The store is one of the largest and finest in the upper Monongahela valley and everything is in readiness for the opening, over two car loads of pianos having been received.

Mr. Wilt has represented the Lester piano in the Monongahela valley for the past twelve years and needs no introduction to the people of this vicinity. Quality, real service and a fair deal to all has been his motto throughout his many years in this section and he can point with pride to hundreds of satisfied customers.

Arrangements have been made to have special music tomorrow afternoon and evening for the opening, the noted Giles orchestra of Pittsburgh and Mrs. A. G. Lewis, soloist, of Charleroi, having been secured for the occasion.

A special invitation is extended the public to visit this new establishment tomorrow where they will not only be entertained with a pleasing musical program, but in addition can inspect the largest display of pianos ever brought to the Monongahela valley. 11-fp

Refuse to Parade

(By United Press)

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11. — Thirty thousand veterans of the World War participated in the big Armistice Day parade which started to traverse the principal streets of the city at 10:30 this morning. Mayor Babcock, whose stand in matters pertaining to former service men has brought down censure upon his head, refused to stay out of the official reviewing stand and when the wounded veterans discovered the the Mayor in the stand they got out of the automobiles in which they were being transported.

Other marching soldiers following the action of the wounded veterans, turned down a side street and came out on Fifth avenue rather than march past the Mayor. Babcock then attempted to speak, but the hisses of the soldiers brought his speech to a quick end and he left the stand and the parade continued. Mayor Babcock recently refused to revoke a permit he had granted for the street collection of money to aid children in Germany and Austria.

Birthday Party

A birthday party was held Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Dorothy Rose at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rose. The evening was spent in games and music was furnished by Miss Mary Meyer. Many beautiful presents were received and all enjoyed a very pleasant evening. Those present were Clemmie Delbarre, Henrietta Kissler, Ruth and Marion Allison, Marie Nicoden, Opal Smith, Elizabeth Dixon, Ruth Rose, Ralph Rose, Clarence Rose, Chester Smith, Richard Watkins William and James Rose, Arthur Stassin, Merele Meyer, Isvin and Clifford Jester and Woodrow Rose. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Harvey Rose and her assistants.

For many years Pennsylvania has headed the Republican column at Presidential elections, but this time New York with her 1,040,000 plurality for Harding takes the banner.

Attempted Robbery is Cause of Excitement

(By United Press)

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 11.—Indignant police and bank officials are searching for Francis J. Carey, youthful teller of the National Citizens bank of this city, who is charged with attempting to make away with $60,000 in cash. Late last night a man phoned the president of the bank that he had picked up $60,000 in an alley which a man had dropped while fleeing from the bank.

Police were notified and an investigation showed that money was strewn all over the bank floor and the vault was locked with the time lock set for forty hours. This being Armistice Day the bank would not have been opened and the police believed that yeggs had robbed the bank and locked the teller in the vault.

Hurried calls were made to the penitentiary for yeggmen to work the combination but there were no prisoners incarcerated who could do the Valentine act and the police of Chicago were appealed to. Chartering a special train, police, yeggman and secret service men started for Ottowa but in the meantime two employees of a garage burned holes into the vault only to find it empty. A search for Carey revealed the fact that he was missing and the warrant was then sworn out for his arrest.

OLDEST OF STATE MOTTOES

That of Maryland Was Adopted in 1648—Enshrined in History of the Commonwealth

The Maryland suffragists who propose altering the state's motto, 'Fatti Maschy Parole Feminae' (to use the old spelling) are proposing to put rough hands to what should be sacred. The offensive translation 'Deeds are masculine words are feminine' is not the only one possible. The secretary of state could readily be directed to give official approval to "manly deeds and womanly words" which would give women a recognition they enjoy in no other state motto.

But the best reason for jealously guarding Maryland's motto is that it is the oldest the nation can boast—the date of its adoption is placed in 1648—and is enwrapped with Maryland history to a remarkable degree. Throw away the Baltimore motto and Maryland might as well turn the portrait of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore to the wall.

There are other state mottoes that are open to attack. Alabama's 'Here We Rest' suggests an obvious joke. So does Washington's 'By and By.' Virginia's motto recalls John Wilkes Booth. New York's the rather tawdry declamation by Longfellow which it inspired and those of several other states—like Kansas 'Ad Astra Per Aspera'—the rhetoric of commencements. While these states cleave to their mottoes Maryland may well be boastful of hers and its associations.—New York Evening Post.

HOT "SHOT" FOR NEIGHBOR

Probably Woman Wished She Had Not Irritated Mr Dobson While He Was Worried

Mr Dobson came home early in the evening but 17 sheets in the wind. He negotiated the steps to his front door on his hands and knees. Finally when he reached the top, he fished his keys from his pocket without much difficulty but the keyhole, of course, could not be found.

After several attempts to locate it, in which he failed miserably he happened to look over his shoulder, and discovered the woman next door watching him.

"Wash you wan'?" he demanded.

"I don't want anything," she replied, but didn't go away.

The man made another attempt to find the keyhole but being again unsuccessful turned in disgust and asked the neighbor if she had borrowed the keyhole.

"Of course not. I don't know anything about your keyhole except that you can't find it," said she.

"Well you've borrowed everything elsh we've got sho I thought maybe you borrowed our keyhole," came the reply.

Peter and Paul Were in Rome

According to the evidence and discoveries of two famous archaeologists of Rome Professors Grossi Condi and Orazio Marucchi, there no longer remains any doubt that the Apostles Peter and Paul both went to Rome and suffered martyrdom there.

That doubt has been raised several times in controversies between various schools of archaeologists.

"The Apostles Peter and Paul" professor Marucchi said "did go to Rome. I have found traces of their burial in a catacomb hewn out of the rock on the Appian Way behind the ancient church of St Sebastian.

"There are graves in this underground [illegible] which of course prove nothing. But there are also writings on the wall and these writings all invoke the aid of Peter and Paul, described as lying there."

Famous Mine May "Come Back."

The Comstock lode once known as the richest silver mine in the world and from which millions of dollars were taken during the height of its fame is about to come back to its own. For years the lode was almost deserted and Virginia City, Nev, lived along in a lethargy that included the slow crumbling of its buildings and the rotting of its sidewalks until what was one of the most colorful blazing excitement gathering towns in the United States became a monument to dead hopes and a mockery of its former self.

It has been discovered that thousands of tons of low grade ore now are standing in giant dumps and yet other thousands of tons resting in the mines themselves can be made to yield as high as $10 a ton under modern methods of extraction.

Bulrushes Found of Value

As a result of a German professor's discovery that the roots of the ordinary bulrush contain as much as 30 per cent of cane sugar, special dredges are now being built for the purpose of harvesting them reports Popular Mechanics Magazine. The roots grow in thick horizontal masses and in one part of Germany are believed to underlie everywhere a tract of marsh and comprising [illegible] acres. Though sugar is the product chiefly sought secondary processes yield alcohol and a nutritive cattle feed. From the juice there is made also a strong beer resembling porter.

Frivolous Personalities.

"I wonder if Mrs. [illegible] knows anything about Fiume."

"You'd better not mention the subject to her."

"Why not?"

"She may think you are talking about some kind that can be made in a chafing dish."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Opening Sale of Lester Pianos Players and Grands

HAYS PLAYER PIANO

During This Special Sale

If there is anyone in this Vicinity that intends buying a Piano within the next six months it will pay you to come to this Sale. Never before have you been given the opportunity of buying a strictly high grade Piano like the Lester at any such reduction in price. We absolutely guarantee you the above saving. The Lester Piano is one of the finest pianos on the market today regardless of price. Quality has always reigned supreme in the Lester Factory.

Six Reasons Why You Should Buy A Lester

First—Who makes it?

The Lester Piano and the Lester Player-Piano are made complete in one mammoth factory. The same men who built the Lester thirty-five years ago are still at the head of this huge plant and have guided its destinies through its entire history. Every part of the instrument no matter how small or how large it is and the entire player mechanism is completely made under one roof. Through every operation in its manufacture each part is under the most rigid inspection. Only the absolutely perfect piece survives these expert examinations. This means that the Lester is a complete whole, each unit Lester made and Lester designed to fit and work perfectly with every other unit. The advantage of this is obvious.

Second—How long will it last?

Few things so truly reflect the character and honesty of the makers as piano. The kind that is put together to sell for a price inevitably wears out in a few years. The type that is not designed properly and made conscientiously is at best but a temporary affair. At the Lester factory only the most skilled workmen are employed, only the few finest materials are used, only the most scientific designing is accepted. Everything must measure up to Lester standards—the standards that have made it prominent for a third of a century. The Lester is an object of zealous endeavor on the part of the craftsman who make it—men trained to the tone and quality ideals of those who first conceived the Lester Piano. The remarkable stamina and durability of the Lester is phenomenal, and the manner in which all Lesters hold their original sterling qualities of tone, action and finish makes them leaders in the field of high grade instruments.

Third—The tone

The piano is more than a machine. The art equation must be instilled into the inanimate materials through the human element to the end that the tone shall be pure, clear, sweet and true. In the Lester this has been attained to a remarkable degree. Not only is the voicing of the instrument rich and mellow but scientific construction enables it to hold its tone for an indefinite length of time. It stays in tune.

Fourth—The action

The action is the heart of the piano or player piano. In the Lester it is easy and responsive. This means that expression and interpretation on the Lester soon become natural and instinctive. On the player-piano the average person can play like a finished musician. The action of the Lester is so balanced and so free from friction that there is practically no wear whatever incident to the playing. It last.

Fifth—Design and finish

The design of the Lester is simple and artistic. Purity of line is sought rather than elaborate, fancy scrolls. It will not become 'out of date.' Its superlative finish is exquisite and lasting. No matter what your style of furniture you can get a Lester to match. Any wood, in any finish—satin, bright or craftsman—can be furnished.

Sixth—Guarantee

The guarantee of the Lester Piano Company amply protects the purchaser of any instrument bearing its name. The pianos and players carry their own message of tone and quality and the commercial standing of the firm behind them assures perfect protection to every buyer. It is through satisfaction that this immense Lester business has been built—satisfaction of more than one hundred thousand users in all parts of the world. Could more than a hundred thousand people be wrong?

AUTOMAT ROMANCE

By MARY MORISON.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was June—the month of roses and brides and hurdy-gurdies. "Il Trovatore" mingled with the cries of the street vendors—"Strawberries, sweet strawberries!" June even found its way through the revolving doors of that ornately entranced lunch room, the "automat."

Masie Gallagher, romantically munching a sandwich, looked up suddenly and caught the eye of a young man seated across the table, separated from her by two feet of mission furniture, a vinegar cruet, sugar bowl, a bottle of tomato catsup and a salt cellar.

Something told Masie that this man was not a habitue of the automat. His well-cut clothes, his deliberately turned mustache and his nicely manicured hands proclaimed him "different."

All of a sudden she was glad her new straw hat was so becoming and that the floor walker at Tuppen's had given her an extra half hour for lunch. And because it was June she smiled faintly at the young man.

"I say," he removed the bottle of catsup from between them and leaned eagerly forward. "You don't look as if you belonged in this 5 cent place. I'll wager that the head waiter at the Plaza is reserving a table by the window for your at this minute. What's the answer? Out for experience—to see how the other half lives?"

Temptation nudged Masie Gallagher's elbow and came and ensconced itself in her bosom aided and abetted by her vivid imagination and an assiduous reading of the novels of one Robert Chambers. She succumbed.

"I'm sorry I show it so plainly," she said to the young man with a deprecating air. "We are spending a few days at the Plaza before our usual summer at Newport." And, with her elbows on the table, rather confidentially. "I've always wanted to see the inside of this place, you know. The cakes and omelettes they have in the window look so perfectly entrancing as I go by in the motor. If I hadn't been afraid of shocking the chauffeur I'd have stopped long ago. But we've packed him off to the country, so I seized today's opportunity."

They smiled delightedly into each other's eyes, and then Masie said:

"But what about you? What are you doing here?"

"The same thing," he replied, giving his mustache a deliberate caress with his beautiful hands. "I'm stopping at the club over on Fifty-First street, seeing the same fellows, eating the same rich food day after day, until I am sick to death of it. Beastly bore—living at the club—but the mater is out of town, off on a motor trip, and the house is shut up tight as a drum—so there was nothing else to be done. I'm mightily glad I decided to give myself a contrast at the automat today—mighty glad!"

"Isn't it funny we've never met before," he continued, making a mental note of the blush.

"Well—not really," replied Masie shamelessly. "You see, we don't go out socially at all. My father is the most terrific old autocrat in New York and he says that Paris and Rome are the only places he will allow me to go out in. So, of course, I have missed all the nice things here."

And then, because life always mixes the bitter with the sweet, the big white clock on the wall of the automat forced itself into Masie's line of vision. One thirty! Gracious, in 15 minutes she would be due behind the ribbon counter at Tuppen's. She rose.

"I had no idea it was so late," she said. "I have a fitting at Tuppen's which I must not miss.

"So glad to have met you," she purred.

"But you haven't told me your name," exclaimed the young man, holding on to the little hand, determination in his admiring eyes. "I must see you again, you know."

"I'm sorry," said Masie Gallagher, daughter of Tim Gallagher, of the New York police force, "but it's better not. Father would insist on knowing where I had met you and there would be an awful row. Goodby"—and, with a heartfelt resentment at the station in life to which it had pleased God to call her, Masie made her way back to the ribbon counter. That delicate, aristocratic mustache burned her memory.

She sold five yards of blue ribbon to a plump old lady who wanted it "charged and taken."

"Just a minute, please," requested Masie listlessly, her mind far away. "The floor walker must sign for it." And she cried shrill and loud:

"Mr. Foster! Mr. Foster!"

"For Pete's sake, Masie," said Clara Oppenheim who also sold ribbons at Tuppen's department store. "Don't you know Foster's gone. There's a new man—Mr Pelgeon."

"Mr Pelgeon! Mr. Pelgeon!" she shrilled.

"Right here," said a familiar, carefully modulated voice in her ear. Masie was looking into the aristocratic face of the man at the automat.

"Good Lord! The Plaza and Newport!" he muttered, as he signed for the ribbon.

"My G—d! The club!" gasped Masie, as she handed it over to the plump purchaser.

But as they stood there in amazement, Masie saw the same deep admiration in the man's eyes and Mr. Pelgeon saw the same becoming blush on Masie's pretty face, and—well, it was June—the month of brides.

OLDEST OF STATE MOTTOES

That of Maryland Was Adopted In 1648—Enshrined In History of the Commonwealth.

The Maryland suffragists who propose altering the state's motto, "Fatti Maschy Parole Feminae" (to use the old spelling) are proposing to put rough hands to what should be sacred. The offensive translation, "Deeds are masculine, words are feminine," is not the only one possible. The secretary of state could readily be directed to give official approval to "manly deeds and womanly words," which would give women a recognition they enjoy in no other state motto.

But the best reason for jealously guarding Maryland's motto is that it is the oldest the nation can boast—the date of its adoption is placed in 1648—and is enwrapped with Maryland history to a remarkable degree. Throw away the Baltimore motto and Maryland might as well turn the portrait of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore, to the wall.

There are other state mottoes that are open to attack. Alabama's "Here We Rest" suggests an obvious joke. So does Washington's "By and By." Virginia's motto recalls John Wilkes Booth. New York's the rather tawdry declamation by Longfellow which it inspired, and those of several other states—like Kansas' "Ad Astra Per Aspera"—the rhetoric of commencements. While these states cleave to their mottoes Maryland may well be boastful of hers and its associations. —New York Evening Post.

HOT "SHOT" FOR NEIGHBOR

Probably Woman Wished She Had Not Irritated Mr. Dobson While He Was Worried.

Mr. Dobson came home early in the evening, but 17 sheets in the wind. He negotiated the steps to his front door on his hands and knees. Finally, when he reached the top, he fished his keys from his pocket without much difficulty, but the keyhole, of course, could not be found.

After several attempts to locate it, in which he failed miserably, he happened to look over his shoulder, and discovered the woman next door watching him.

"Wash you wan'?" he demanded.

"I don't want anything," she replied, but didn't go away.

The man made another attempt to find the keyhole, but being again unsuccessful turned in disgust and asked the neighbor if she had borrowed the keyhole.

"Of course not. I don't know anything about your keyhole except that you can't find it," said she.

"Well, you've borrowed everything elsh we've got, sho I thought maybe you borrowed our keyhole," came the reply.

Peter and Paul Were in Rome.

According to the evidence and discoveries of two famous archaeologists of Rome, Professors Grossi Condi and Orazio Marucchi, there no longer remains any doubt that the Apostles Peter and Paul both went to Rome and suffered martyrdom there.

That doubt has been raised several times in controversies between various schools of archaeologists.

"The Apostles Peter and Paul," professor Marucchi said, "did go to Rome. I have found traces of their burial in a catacomb hewn out of the rock on the Appian Way, behind the ancient church of St. Sebastian.

"There are graves in this underground burying place, which of course prove nothing. But there are also writings on the wall, and these writings all invoke the aid of Peter and Paul, described as lying there."

Famous Mine May "Come Back."

The Comstock lode, once known as the richest silver mine in the world, and from which millions of dollars were taken during the height of its fame, is about to come back to its own. For years the lode was almost deserted, and Virginia City, Nev., lived along in a lethargy that included the slow crumbling of its buildings and the rotting of its sidewalks, until what was one of the most colorful, blazing, excitement-gathering towns in the United States, became a monument to dead hopes and a mockery of its former self.

It has been discovered that thousands of tons of low-grade ore now are standing in giant dumps, and yet other thousands of tons resting in the mines themselves, can be made to yield as high as $10 a ton under modern methods of extraction.

Bulrushes Found of Value.

As a result of a German professor's discovery that the roots of the ordinary bulrush contain as much as 30 per cent of cane sugar, special dredges are now being built for the purpose of harvesting them, reports Popular Mechanics Magazine. The roots grow in thick horizontal masses, and in one part of Germany are believed to underlie everywhere a tract of marshy land comprising 300,000 acres. Though sugar is the product chiefly sought, secondary processes yield alcohol and a nutritive cattle food. From the juice there is made, also, a strong beer resembling porter.

Frivolous Personalities.

"I wonder if Mrs. Gadder knows anything about Fiume?"

"You'd better not mention the subject to her."

"Why not?"

"She may think you are talking about something that can be made in a chafing dish."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

HAYS PLAYER PIANO
During This Special Sale

If there is anyone in this Vicinity that intends buying a Piano within the next six months it will pay you to come to this Sale. Never before have you been given the opportunity of buying a strictly high grade Piano like the Lester at any such reduction in price. We absolutely guarantee you the above saving. The Lester Piano is one of the finest pianos on the market today regardless of price. Quality has always reigned supreme in the Lester Factory.

Six Reasons Why You Should Buy A Lester

First—Who makes it?
The Lester Piano and the Lester Player-Piano are made complete in one mammoth factory. The same men who built the Lester thirty-five years ago are still at the head of this huge plant and have guided its destinies through its entire history. Every part of the instrument, no matter how small or how large it is, and the entire player mechanism is completely made under one roof. Through every operation in its manufacture each part is under the most rigid inspection. Only the absolutely perfect piece survives these expert examinations. This means that the Lester is a complete whole, each unit Lester made and Lester designed to fit and work perfectly with every other unit. The advantage of this is obvious.

Second—How long will it last?
Few things so truly reflect the character and honesty of the makers as pianos. The kind that is put together to sell for a price inevitably wears out in a few years. The type that is not designed properly and made conscientiously is at best but a temporary affair. At the Lester factory only the most skilled workmen are employed; only the few finest materials are used; only the most scientific designing is accepted. Everything must measure up to Lester standards—the standards that have made it prominent for a third of a century. The Lester is an object of zealous endeavor on the part of the craftsman who make it—men trained to the tone and quality ideals of those who first conceived the Lester Piano. The remarkable stamina and durability of the Lester is phenominal, and the manner in which all Lesters hold their original sterling qualities of tone, action and finish makes them leaders in the field of high grade instruments.

Third—The tone
The piano is more than a machine. The art equation must be instilled into the inanimate materials through the human element, to the end that the tone shall be pure, clear, sweet and true. In the Lester this has been attained to a remarkable degree. Not only is the voicing of the instrument rich and mellow, but scientific construction enables it to hold its tone for an indefinite length of time. It stays in tune.

Fourth—The action
The action is the heart of the piano or player-piano. In the Lester it is easy and responsive. This means that expression and interpretation on the Lester soon become natural and instinctive. On the player-piano, the average person can play like a finished musician. The action of the Lester is so balanced and so free from friction that there is virtually no wear whatever incident to the playing It lasts.

Fifth—Design and finish
The design of the Lester is simple and artistic. Purity of line is sought, rather than elaborate, fancy scrolls. It will not become "out of date". Its superlative finish is exquisite and lasting. No matter what your style of furniture, you can get a Lester to match. Any wood, in any finish—satin, bright or craftsman—can be furnished.

Sixth—Guarantee
The guarantee of the Lester Piano Company amply protects the purchaser of any instrument bearing its name. The pianos and players carry their own message of tone and quality, and the commercial standing of the firm behind them assures perfct protection to every buyer. It is through satisfaction that this immense Lester business has been built—satisfaction of more than one hundred thousand users in all parts of the world. Could more than a hundred thousand people be wrong?

AUTOMAT ROMANCE

By MARY MORISON.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was June—the month of roses and brides and hurdy gurdies. "Il Trovatore" mingled with the cries of the street vendors "Strawberries, sweet strawberries!" June even found its way through the revolving doors of that ornately entranced lunch room, the "automat."

Masie Gallagher, romantically munching a sandwich, looked up suddenly and caught the eye of a young man seated across the table, separated from her by two feet of mission furniture, a vinegar cruet, sugar bowl, a bottle of tomato catsup and a salt cellar.

Something told Masie that this man was not a habitue of the automat. His well-cut clothes, his deliberately turned mustache and his nicely manicured hands proclaimed him "different."

All of a sudden she was glad her new straw hat was so becoming and that the floor walker at Tuppen's had given her an extra half hour for lunch. And because it was June she smiled faintly at the young man.

REPUBLICAN IN POLITICS

A COMMON GROUND

Senator Harding, President-elect, is off on a well-earned vacation, during which he will likely make some headway in bringing about more cordial relations between the United States and Mexico.

His heart-to-heart talk to the home folks on the eve of his departure has made a fine impression upon his countrymen. In this he said:

> America is not expecting the superman. I have told the people that we are going to have in America once more Government by the Constitution, Government by the people through their chosen representatives. The thing that counts is the will of the people, not the will of the Chief Executive.
> Those of you who know me best, know, maybe, that I have one great attribute which will fall into the situation. All along all my life, I have preached conference, counsel, exchange of opinion and the meeting of many friends. It has been said that I am reactionary and ultra-conservative. Let me remind you that the great thing for America is the slowing up of the extreme radical and the speeding up of the conservative, so that we can better come together.

These are words of wisdom and nothing which the President-elect could have said would better have stated the desires of the people in this period of readjustment. Americans have made no mistake in the selectio nof their chief executive. He realizes his responsibilities and with a constructive mind will do everything possible to dissipate the fog of a theoretical and autocratic administration in Washington.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES

Not merely have inexperienced investors been losing great sums of money in wildcat speculations, but a lot of people of better business training have been equally out of luck as a result of dabbling in doubtful securities.

Many such propositions seem to have an established business in some popular article. But later unanticipated difficulties are apt to arise. Litigation and quarrels often develop particularly in dealing with patented articles. And it takes a good while for a concern to reach a settled basis.

The people that bought a line of goods from a new concern as an experiment, may decide to keep on experimenting and try some other line. It takes years to develop a permanent working force of people who can be depended upon to stick by. The most hopeful enterprise often finds itself up against unforseen difficulties that finally prove too great.

This is no argument against new enterprises. Multitudes of them are constantly being put over successfully. But it is an argument against sending money away from your home community to distant enterprises about the management and operations of which you know little or nothing.

Experienced investors do better to put money into the banks or government bonds. When they get more experience and confidence, if they want to go into industrial propositions, they are far safer to try something near home. They can then be sure that the thing is on a good basis and they can get inside information about it. A good business proposition seeks capital in its home community and it depends very largely for its success on the advice and co-operation of the business men of its home town rather than looking for meteoric but unreliable strangers.

DECLINE OF GREAT MAN

Many people are convinced that there are no longer any great men in the world. They look over the political leaders of these times, and they do not find among them any Websters or Jeffersons or Hamiltons.

Accordinz to their philosophy, the present tendency of progress is for the masses of people to organize and engineer their own movements. They hold that the mass of the people have acquired so much intelligence, that they tend to go ahead and carry out their own plans, representing mass convinction of great numbers of people rather than the genuis of the few.

In all ages there has been a tendency to depreciate living men. Someone has defined a "statesman," as a "politician who is dead." While he lives people see his petty side and fail to realize his great constructive work. When he dies, they see what he did to advance human progress.

In the field of military science, the late war produced one man of dazzling genius, Gen. Foch. To have welded the scattered and diverse units of the allied army into an efficient machine capable of crushing the greatest military power in the world, was an achievment which should even equal any exploit credited to the previously peerless Napoleon Bonaparte.

As life grows more complex and human demands enlarge class struggle increases and at times the world seems near anarchy. Probably when history looks over these times, it will find a number of living men whose clear thinking is leading the people away from sophistries of the times into the paths of substantial development. A mountain never looks high until you get off at a distance and can measure it by the surrounding hills.

CAN'T KEEP IT DOWN

You can't keep a good man down, says the old phrase. No more can you keep a good country down. Many business men have been talking in a rather blue way, seeing certain immediate difficulties in the way of prosperity.

The American temperament does not trifle with the problems it meets. It's buoyant enthusiasm, its unbounded energy, go to work whenever difficulties present themselves, and it thinks out ways to meet these obstacles and remove them.

So it will be with all the problems that confront the United States at this moment. Inflated credits, high prices, class feeling, social unrest all these obstacles have to be faced and conquered. The same spirit that cut down the forests and built railroads and laughed at all impediments, will be daunted by the economic and civic problems of these times.

Do Monkey Glands Bring Health?

WHY RUN-DOWN ANAEMIC MEN AND WOMEN HAVE RUN-DOWN GLANDS

Gland Capsules Give Man of 72 the Health of Youth

Robert George Laws, seventy-two, a retired London broker who arrived here recently on the liner Cedric, claims his health and strength were recently restored after years of illness by the use of capsules made up of monkey glands.

He asserts fifty capsules made from the prescription of a Professor whose intestinal gland discoveries astounded the medical world not long ago, have added years to his life.

Laws appears to be about forty and possesses the unusual strength. He asserts the administration of the monkey glands restored his health after ten years' illness.

According to the newspaper clipping reproduced here, a half alive old man of seventy-two says he has become as young and healthy as he was at forty by merely eating a few capsules containing monkey glands.

Were this the sole gland success that has been reported, it might mean little. But it is only one of many remarkable cases of restored health and strength, which have recently been published in the press. Scarcely a week passes without some example of this new kind of treatment being printed in the leading newspapers of the country.

And now it seems that the gland extracts which are most often used are not necessarily those which come from monkeys. In fact many prefer the gland extracts of sheep and cattle when prescribed in tablet form.

It should not be supposed either that gland extracts are effective only with old people. For they are being used extensively by young men and women who are anaemic, run-down, nervous, thin, pale, weak with results that are unusual. As a tonic and strength builder gland extracts, it would seem, have their greatest use.

The reason appears to be perfectly simple. According to those who have given this new treatment great thought, our health depends largely on ductless glands, which govern the building-up of the billions of cells in the blood, muscles, and nerves of the body. They do this by means of a substance called hormones which they supply to the blood. When the glands for any reason fail to supply these hormones the building up of our cells is slowed down and we become weak and anaemic and generally run-down.

Gland extracts from animals may then be used to supply the very substance which the glands have failed to produce. And the result is that the cause of the run-down conditions is attacked. This idea of using animal extracts is not in itself new, pepsin, which has been used for years in indigestion, comes from the stomach of an animal.

While it may seem almost too good to be true there have been reports of people who say they have almost doubled their strength and endurance by their method and frequently results are said to be felt in the first few days. In fact, it would almost look as though there was at last a practical method of using this new gland discovery. Gland extracts from sheep and cattle in combination with calcium Glycerophosphate and nux vomica, well known tonics, can now be purchased at any drug store under the name of Glandex compound.

Note:—Glandex compound is prepared under the direction of the Glandex Company, 241 West 29th Street, New York, and is guaranteed to bring satisfactory benefit in two weeks or money refunded, so it can be taken with full confidence of results or no cost. For sale by Craig's Drug Store, 466 Donner avenue and by good druggists everywhere. It

Digging In

What America needs today is more "diggers in."

Success is like nature. It gives its treasures only to those who go beneath the surface of things by dint of sweat and hard work.

The person with a growing savings account is "digging in." It may be years before he strikes "pay dirt" but he has the absolute knowledge that persistent endeavor will always produce results.

HELP TO FILL FAMILY PURSE

In City of Johnstown, N. Y., Three-quarters of the Wives Are in Gainful Occupations.

In a survey of family incomes in nearly one hundred cities of the United States, the department of labor found that in Johnstown, N. Y., three-quarters of the wives earn money.

The Labor Review explains that this remarkable condition prevails in Johnstown because glovemaking is the principal industry there and furnishes work which women can do at home. This appeals to them, because they are able to earn good wages without leaving their household.

In almost one-sixth of the New York city homes visited women contributed earnings toward the support of the home. In Boston, one wife out of ten works; in Buffalo, one in twenty-eight; in Cleveland and Cincinnati one in seven, and in Pittsburgh only one in fifty. It is interesting to note that investigators found that a surprisingly large percentage of town dwellers derive some income from gardens and poultry. Ninety-three per cent of those visited in Cleveland had a garden or chickens.

Fresh Eggs.

The pert proprietor of a grocery in East Twenty-fifth street, is nothing if not good at repartee.

The other day, rather early in the forenoon, one of the good wives in the neighborhood stepped into the store and inquired:

"Any real fresh eggs?" (Great emphasis on the "real fresh.")

"Oh, yes, ma'am," he replied. "Some just laid this morning."

A day or two later, somewhat earlier in the forenoon than before, the good wife again dropped into the store and inquired:

"Any more of those real fresh eggs?"

Whereupon the grocer cried to his clerk:

"Run to the back room, boy, and see if this morning's eggs are cool enough yet to sell."—Indianapolis News.

Famous London Tree Gone.

A famous old mulberry tree in north London, England, under which 144 years ago it is said the American Declaration of Independence was first read in that country, has fallen under the weight of its age. American boy scouts attending the international scout conference in London visited the tree only a few days before it crashed and its history was told to 300 of them, who had their photographs taken beneath its branches. The tree stood on one of the lawns of the Mildmay conference hall. Many religious leaders have addressed meetings under its ample shade. Hundreds of requests for chips from the historical tree are being received.

TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Ask your neighbor! Read this twice-told testimony. It's Monessen evidence—doubly proven.

Mr. R. L. Carnes, 222 Alliquippi St., says: "I took Doan's Kidney Pills when complaining of kidney trouble and backache that centered through the small of my back. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved the trouble the first time I tried them. Doan's strengthened my back and rid me of the irregular kidney action and did good in every way." (Statement given on March 2, 1918.)

On July 6, 1920, Mrs. Carnes said: "I still think Doan's are a fine remedy and never fail to recommend them. I haven't been troubled since giving my former statement."

FRANCE'S SURPLUS OF GIRLS

Overwhelming Preponderance of Babies Born to Wives of War Veterans Are of Female Sex

French physicians see in the nervous reaction following the trials and perils of war the explanation of the epidemic of girl babies which has swept France in the last year.

They base their conclusion on the remarkable fact that while over [illegible] per cent of the children recently born to men who served under fire are girls, 60 per cent of the babies of war profiteers, slackers and men physically unfit for combatant service have been boys.

Sociologists looking into the future predict that if the present disproportional feminine birthrate continues over half of the girls born in France in 1919 and 1920 will be doomed to spinsterhood. The proportion of young and middle-aged married men in France who saw no service on the front is so small that the boy babies born in their families are outnumbered more than two to one by the infant daughters of the war veterans.

While at a loss to explain the workings of the mysterious influence predetermining the sex of the children born to ex-soldiers, French physicians agree that the relaxation of men's nerves suddenly relieved from the high tension of constant perils and hardships is at the bottom of the puzzling question.

So long as the war continued and men remained keyed to a high nervous pitch their children were more often boys than girls. Sixty five per cent of soldiers' babies born during the war were boys. Now that the hectic days of shot and shell are over the pendulum of gravity has swung to the other extreme and the pages of France's birth registers are filled largely with names of new born girl babies.—Amaroc News.

Guiding Ships Into Harbor.

Experiments like those which the navy department is now making toward the piloting of craft into the harbor appear to be meeting with success. They are certainly worth making. The method is a combination of cable with wireless guidance. An earlier check, the frequent breaking of the cable, has been overcome. It only remains to develop the method in detail. Very likely the time will come when entering New York harbor will be almost as exactly managed a procedure as driving down the streets in the center of the town conforming to traffic regulations.—New York Sun.

Settles Claim

Harrisburg, Nov. 11.—In settlement of a claim against him for allowing a forest fire to start from his saw mill, John J. Naugle, of Ligonier, has paid the State $100.00, according to information sent to the Department of Forestry by District Forester V. M. Bearer, of Ligonier. The fire burned over 3,000 acres before it was put out.

State police troopers patrolled the Lincoln Highway between Kingston and Jennertown recently to prevent possible forest fires. They instructed several touring parties to remove leaves and inflammable debris from around their camp fires, and saw that no campers left without extinguishing their camp fires.

Lee McGraw and a party of Jeannette sportsmen have leased a camp site along Lynn Run in the Stewart Division of the Forbes State Forest. A shelter cabin has been erected by Forester Beart on the top of Cummings Tower, near Kreager, Westmoreland county. It has been connected by telephone with the Forester's headquarters so that aid may be summoned in case forest fires are discovered.

Edward Thorpe and Charles Lowry of Stuart township, Fayette county, have been named forest fire wardens by the Department of Forestry. Edward Costello, of Glenfield, Allegheny county, has also been appointed a guardian of the woods.

Two dinkey engines operating through woodlands with inefficient spark arresters and not followed by patrolmen, have been reported to the State Forestry Department as forest fire hazards.
